Definitions

The average household size for an area is equal to the total number of usual residents living in households in that area divided by the total number of households in that area that have at least one usual resident.

Visitors staying at an address do not contribute to that household's size because they are counted in the household of their place of usual residence.

A communal establishment is an establishment providing managed residential accommodation. 'Managed' in this context means full-time or part-time supervision accommodation.

Types of communal accommodation include:

- Sheltered accommodation units;
- Small hotels, guest house, bed and breakfasts, inns and pubs with resident accommodation with room for more than 10 or more guests, and
- All accommodation provided solely for students (during term-time). This includes university cluster flats, houses and apartments located within student villages, and similar accommodation owned by a private company and provided solely for students.

A dwelling is defined as a self-contained unit of accommodation, and may contain one or more households.

A household is defined as:

- One person living alone, or
- A group of people (not necessarily related) living at the same address who share cooking facilities and share a living room or a dining area

The household size is equal to the number of usual residents in the household.

A usual resident refers to a person who on census day, was in the UK and had stayed or intended to stay in the UK for a period of 12 months or more, or had a permanent UK address and was outside the UK and intended to be outside the UK for less than 12 months.
